

FOLLOW THE LOW LINE

The Low Line is an emerging world-class walking route along the base of the viaduct in Bankside, linking London Bridge and Waterloo stations. Led by Better Bankside it encourages greater exploration along its length, revealing new destinations, and celebrating the history and unique heritage of one of London's oldest neighbourhoods.

Redcross Way

Here the Low Line comes close to Bankside's famous Medieval burial ground - Crossbones. Explore one of Bankside's newest gardens at Crossbones - a memorial garden to remember the outcast dead who were buried here in un-consecrated graves.

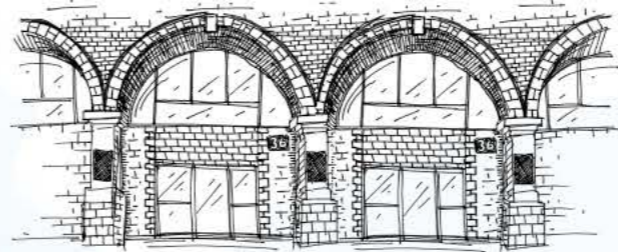

Flat Iron Square

Street food, live music and a weekly vintage flea market.

OLD UNION YARD ARCHES

Old Union Yard Arches/Union Parade
A lively mix of theatre, food and drink.

BOROUGH MARKET

REDCROSS WAY

FLAT IRON SQUARE

METAL BOX FACTORY

EWER ST

BLACKFRIARS ROAD

Borough Market

London's oldest and most renowned food market. Borough Market's stalls, shops and restaurants celebrate traditional produce alongside regional specialities from around the world.

Metal Box Factory

Great food in a tranquil setting.

Ewer St

Dating back to the 1700s, Ewer Street follows the arches parallel to Union Street. Hidden in the street are reminders of local history: an ancient burial ground, Bankside's famous Clink Bollards and a memorial to those killed in an air raid during the Blitz.

Blackfriars Road One of London's short-lived stations, Blackfriars Road was on the South Eastern Railway (SER) line, between Charing Cross and London Bridge. It was opened in 1864 with the name Blackfriars but closed less than five years later. It is now retrospectively known as Blackfriars Road to distinguish it from the current Blackfriars station.

Explore Bankside's hidden and tranquil ways along the mighty Victorian viaducts that crisscross the area.

Better
Bankside

SUPPORTED BY
MAYOR OF LONDON

@BetterBankside #LowLineLDN

LOW LINE

LOW LINE WALKABLE ROUTE
LOW LINE ALTERNATIVE ROUTE

LONDON BRIDGE - SOUTHWARK
15 MINUTES' WALK

